72289	2008 Enira Red Bessa Valley Bulgaria	$17.99	$15.99	11%
	"The 2008 “ENIRA” is a blend of Merlot (48%), Syrah (40%), Cabernet Sauvignon (5%) and Petit Verdot (7%), aged in a mixture of one to three year old oak. This was previously seen as a barrel sample. Pleasant and easy drinking, it has little depth or concentration here, but it is rather tasty. It has straightforward fruitiness with that earthy hint of Syrah underneath mingling nicely with the sweet nuances." - Reviewed by: The Wine Advocate - 84pts
67416	2012 Vini Sauvignon Blanc	$7.99	N/A	N/A
	"The tank fermented 2011 Sauvignon Blanc, now from the Thracian Valley, is fruity and well integrated, with a whiff of those trademark Sauvignon Blanc aromatics up front, but nothing aggressive. It is a laid back wine and the moderately fruity demeanor makes it a tasty and very approachable crowd pleaser. There is some nice acidity underneath, though, that gives it some vibrancy. At the price, it should make a lot of folks feel like they got a real deal." - Reviewed by: The Wine Advocate - 85pts

72290	2006 Enira Reserva Red Bessa Valley Bulgaria	$24.99	N/A	N/A
	"The 2006 RESERVA ENIRA is a blend of Merlot (67%), Syrah (16 %), Cabernet Sauvignon (12%) and Petit Verdot (5%), raised in 40% new oak. The oak is a bit obvious, but compared to the regular bottling, the fruit lingers on the finish longer, the aromatics are better, and there is better balance--more depth, but without the sharp bite on the regular Enira reviewed this issue. It is still rather modest in the mid-palate and a bit straightforward, but it is pleasing, young and vibrant, quite pleasant for regular drinking." - Reviewed by: The Wine Advocate - 87pts
