	"Here's a bright wine that offers sensations of tropical fruit, lemon-lime and Bartlett pear that all carry through to the savory palate. Bright acidity gives it a clean, refreshing finish." - Reviewed by: The Wine Enthusiast - 88pts
74090	2013 Terredora Fiano di Avellino	$21.99	N/A	N/A
	"This savory Fiano opens with aromas of jasmine, honeysuckle and exotic fruit. The ripe, round palate delivers succulent yellow peach, ripe apricot, Bartlett pear and juicy pineapple alongside fresh acidity." - Reviewed by: The Wine Enthusiast - 88pts
74691	2013 Terredora Coda di Volpe	$13.99	N/A	N/A
	"Tropical fruit and citrus aromas take center stage on this bright, refreshing wine. The juicy palate delivers lemon-lime and pineapple alongside crisp acidity. A note of white almond signals the close." - Reviewed by: The Wine Enthusiast - 87pts
74031	2008 Mastroberardino Taurasi Radici	$54.99	N/A	N/A
	"Good deep red-ruby. Musky aromas of red cherry, flinty redcurrant and shoe polish. Juicy, spicy and bright, with firm acidity giving definition and lift to the soil-driven flavors of redcurrant, black cherry and cocoa powder. Very fresh and precise aglianico, with lingering notes of tar and cherry and smooth, rising tannins. Boasts superb potential." - Reviewed by: International Wine Cellar - 92pts
73691	2009 Monteverrano	$69.99	N/A	N/A
	"The 2009 Monteverrano is quite possibly the most accessible young vintage of this wine I have ever tasted. I am accustomed to Monteverranos that are tight and austere, but not in 2009. In 2009 Monteverrano is open and radiant, with layers of dark fruit and a polished, well-articulated finish. The 2009 is likely to be an early drinker, but that doesn't necessarily mean the wine will age quickly. A complete vertical tasted last year and published in Issue 190 found the wines in great shape, including all of the earliest vintages. Monteverrano is approximately 60% Cabernet Sauvignon, 30% Merlot and 10% Aglianico that spent 12-14 months in French oak, 50% new. It remains a benchmark in southern Italian oenology." - Reviewed by: Vinous - 92pts
74202	2012 Ocone Piediroso	$17.99	N/A	N/A
	"A distinct notable deep ruby red color with a fresh yet intense fruit aroma, predominantly cherry. Full and silky in the mouth with a soft and balanced structure. The flavor is black cherry, strawberry, leather and tar with a mineral finish." - Reviewed by: Producer
