	"Yellow with a gold tinge. Very ripe yellow fruit aromas complicated by subtle gingery spices and flowers on the expressive nose. Complex and pure on the palate, with a tactile umami charater to the ginger and ripe peach flavors. Ripe acidity nicely frames the wine's dense, rich fruit. Very concentrated and long, finishing with a lightly tannic impression. Sweeter than the Calcaire bottling but a bit less intellectual than that wine." - Reviewed by: International Wine Cellar - 92pts

	"Golden yellow. Burnt almond, aromatic herbs, roasted peach and mango on the perfumed nose. Then sweet, suave and very rich in the mouth, offering dense flavors of spicy candied pineapple and banana cream pie. Peppery honey and sweet brown spice nuances on the long, satisfying finish. Outstanding entry-level gewurz, as only Alsace can muster. Though this certainly tastes moderately sweet (but much less so than the rather high 40 g/l residual sugar suggests), I love this wine's overall balance and penetrating, spicy aromas and flavors." - Reviewed by: International Wine Cellar - 89pts

	"A remarkable pungency and brightness of rhubarb preserves, pink grapefruit marmalade, and glazed pineapple laced with lime and sage oil scent the Weinbach 2007 Gewurztraminer Mambourg Selection de Grains Nobles and generate an electrically charged, sweet and tart palate impression, with 128 grams of residual sugar cut down to mere sweetness by atypically high acids and implosive extract. Seldom will one encounter a Gewurztraminer with remotely this sort of vivacity, and tasted blind I would more likely have guessed this to be a Muscat or Scheurebe.
