	"The 2014 Hazana Vinas Viejas is simply one of the greatest values in Rioja that money can buy. A blend of 85% Tempranillo and 15% Graciano, this collaboration between importer Eric Solomon and the owner and winemaker has produced an absolutely amazing Rioja from 45- to 70-year-old unirrigated, head-pruned vines. Loads of lead pencil shavings, black and red currants, licorice and tobacco leaf all jump from the glass of this dense, ruby/purple wine. Soft tannins, medium to full body and fabulous intensity, make for a sensational Rioja to drink over the next 5-7 years. If the good news. Rather refined and showing off its balance and finesse on first taste, this then becomes more traditional Xinomavro. The acidity pops up and the astringency on the finish follows quickly. Yet, it's beautifully constructed overall and ultimately very well balanced. Thanks to the late release, this is certainly approachable now. I gave it some two hours of air as well, and it became very attractive and more harmonious. For all of its power and acidity, everything is controlled well. It has lovely, silky texture and a full feel in the mouth on opening, too. It is a perfect food wine, but if you give it another year or two I suspect it will even be better. This is, again, aged in neutral oak for two years and a blend of three vintages: 2011, 2012 and 2013. This is my favorite of all of these wines – a wine of exceptional purity and intensity and plenty of character, as this one is 70% Syrah and the rest the other three grapes. It tips the scales at a lofty 15.3% alcohol, but it's well hidden behind a cascade of blackberry and cassis fruit, roasted meats, steak tartare, licorice and Provençal herbs.
