75063	2012 Kanonkop Pinotage	$35.99	N/A	N/A

75296	2011 Sadie Family Columella	$115.00	N/A	N/A
	"The 2011 Columella is more reticent on the nose when compared directly against the 2010: straight-laced and linear with subtle tertiary notes that unfurl with aeration. This seems more masculine than the previous vintage. The palate is vibrant and poised on the entry with fresh crisp tannins, effervescent citrus fresh red and black fruit, a dash of white and black pepper and a beautifully poised finish. Once those aromatics awaken with time, this will be a stunning Columella. Drink 2015-2025. Eben Sadie simply wrote "old rules" in the spec sheet for his Old Vine Series, which sums up his approach perfectly. You never quite know what you will get with the wines – so please bear that in mind. That is what makes them so thrilling, because when they do excel they can represent something that attains true profundity, wines that are willing to offer intellectual as well as sensory pleasure. They are produced in small quantities so they can be difficult to track down, though in my opinion they remain very keenly priced for now." - Reviewed by: The Wine Advocate - 95pts

	"The 2011 Pinot Noir was matured in 300-liter French oak of which 20% is new. It has an elegant bouquet with clean wild strawberry, raspberry and bergamot scents that demonstrate great clarity. The palate is well-defined with an edgy opening. There is plenty of tart cherry fruit mingling with raspberry and a touch of soy, and it builds nicely to a harmonious finish that is clean and focused. Very fine." - Reviewed by: The Wine Advocate - 91pts

	"Reticent but pure aromas of cassis, blackberry, licorice, bitter chocolate, espresso and spicy oak. Then pliant, lush and deep, with terrific inner-mouth energy and violet perfume to lift the dark berry flavors. The tannins saturate the palate and front teeth without coming across as dry. Classy, polished wine--the best yet from the team of Bruno Prats, Hubert de Bouard and Lowell Jooste. The co-owners have increased their wine's syrah percentage to great effect, as this 2008 avoids the green notes of earlier vintages without showing any syrah rusticity."
