	"Northwest of Madrid this region is made up of sandy gravel and lime rich alluvial soils. Verdejo takes well to these bearing lime and blossom on the nose and a chalky seashell mineral on its crisp, citric palate. Despite its jumpy acidity, this Verdejo's full bodied structure and fleshy midpalate round it out nicely –and what better white to slake a mighty Spanish thirst?" - Reviewed by: Producer
70645	2013 Marques de Caceres White	$9.99	N/A	N/A
	"True to its typical straw color with metallic highlights, the bouquet reveals lively notes of citrus fruit and minerals that come through with intense freshness. Deliciously vibrant in the mouth with a pleasant fullness and a depth of green apples, pears and grapefruit. Good length on the palate where its charming fruit flavors blend nicely with a refreshing acidity." - Reviewed by: Producer
72436	2013 Telmo Rodriguez Basa Rueda	$11.99	N/A	N/A
	"The 2013 blend is 92% Verdejo, 8% Viura, giving it a more important focus on the native Verdejo than in the past, and doing away with Sauvignon Blanc. As always, it is a fantastically refreshing yet serious bottle of wine, with a range of aromas and flavors from stony mineral notes to citrus to tropical fruit." - Reviewed by: Producer

	"Light yellow-gold. Strikingly complex aromas of poached pear, green apple, floral honey and smoky lees. Fleshy orchard fruit and orange zest flavors are given spine by tangy minerals and gain an intriguing smoky quality on the back end. The mineral component adds cut and lingers on the strikingly long, juicy finish." - Reviewed by: International Wine Cellar - 92pts

	"Pale straw yellow color with greenish reflections, which evidence its youth. Clean and bright wine. High intensity aromas among which the notes of white and exotic fruits such as pineapples, green apples are noticed along with herbal and vegetal notes. Fresh and inviting wine. Good and broad attack and a light and fresh mid palate, with an excellent acidity and a long and dry finish. Young, fresh, meaty and elegant white wine." - Reviewed by: Producer
