|       | "The 2013 Viognier Estate Verna's is another outstanding effort from Greg that also represents a smoking value. Giving up classic apricot, pineapple and loads of floral qualities (almost a flower oil-like quality) to go with a medium-bodied, unctuously textured, yet still surprisingly fresh and focused style on the palate. Aged 6 months in neutral oak, it's an impressive Viognier to enjoy over the coming year or two." - Reviewed by: The Wine Advocate - 90pts              |            |                 |            |

|       | "Made by Mike MacMorran and coming 70% from the estate Force Majeure Vineyard and 30% from Ciel du Cheval, the 2012 Viognier is 100% Viognier that was aged half in concrete and half in neutral oak. Made in a steely, fresh style, yet with plenty of building richness, it offers up pure aromas and flavors of white peaches, pear, citrus rind and subtle hints of flowers as well as a medium-bodied, juicy and perfectly balanced feel in the mouth. Slated for release next year and opening up beautifully in the glass (it was just bottled at the time of this tasting), I suspect it will gain additional weight and richness prior to release. Classy stuff and very well done." - Reviewed by: The Wine Advocate - 92pts |            |            |            |

|       | "One of the great wines of Condrieu is Guigal's 2011 Condrieu La Doriane. This remarkably consistent blockbuster is not a single vineyard wine as much of it comes from some of the finest sites in this appellation, such as the Cote Chatillon, Coteau du Chery, Colombier and the aforementioned Lys de Volant. The 2011 is superb, offering white peach, honeysuckle, quince, peach marmalade, spring flower and subtle background oak notes. Full-bodied with good minerality and freshness, it is exceptionally well delineated for a wine of this size." - Robert Parker, Jr. - Reviewed by: The Wine Advocate - 94pts  |            |            |            |

|       | "Another stunning white is the 2012 Viognier, which has malolactic fermentation blocked, and is fermented and aged six months in both neutral French oak and stainless steel. It is a big, sexy fruit bomb offering lots of honeysuckle, apricot marmalade, and tropical fruits. What makes it so successful is that it possesses terrific acidity and a hint of wet stones/minerality, which is unusual for a California Viognier. No doubt their mountain top site helped promote this characteristic." - Robert Parker - Reviewed by: The Wine Advocate - 91pts   |            |            |            |
